The Xenopus laevis skeletal muscle myosin heavy chain (MHC) gene was targeted for inactivation by injecting site-specific antisense oligonucleotides (ASOs) that targeted the translation initiation codon. Homologous recombination of the transfected linearized plasmid with the endogenous vector resulted in highly efficient (>80%) targeting of the endogenous MHC genes in vivo. The ASO-treated Xenopus MHC gene was functional as shown by the production of a muscular protein following injection of cRNA transcribed from the endogenous MHC gene. Western blot analysis using an anti-Xenopus MHC antibody indicated that levels of MHC protein were decreased in ASO-treated oocytes. Furthermore, the reduction in MHC protein levels was accompanied by a reduction in total cellular MHC. Dorcadion karsaghzarianum Dorcadion karsaghzarianum is a species of beetle in the family Cerambycidae.
